TWO KILLED WHEN THESE VEHICLES COLLIDED

Not much remains of this car in which two people died Saturday on Highway 97, 13 miles north of Kelowna. RCMP have released the name of a 21-year-old Lumby man killed in the car-truck crash. He is Roger Theodore Kockie. Also killed was Audrey Elaine Fountain, 16, Kelowna. They were the only occupants of the car and were killed on impact. Inserted in the picture is the tandem truck, driven by Eric Donald Cridland, 19, Rutland. He and a passenger, Robert Bond, also of Rutland, were uninjured.

Kelowna coroner D. M. White said an inquiry into the fatal crash was completed Sunday and details will be released in a few days.

Airliner's Pilot Warned Of Extra Low Visibility

GATWICK, England (CP) — The pilot of the Afghan jet airliner that crashed south of London early Sunday killing 50 persons, may have misunderstood the visibility report from the airport, investigators said today.

Capt. Rahim Nawros, 38, of Afghanistan decided to make a landing despite a warning from Gatwick Airport that visibility on the runway was down to 100 metres, or 328 feet.

Although the Boeing 727 owned by Ariana Airlines was being guided by the airport's instrument landing system, the decision to land was up to the captain. George Kelley, board of trade inspector, said the minimum acceptance visibility for a Boeing 727 to land was about 400 metres.

The investigators also said the plane should have been 300 feet up at the point where it crashed into a farm house two miles from the runway.

When the pilot called Gatwick for a weather report about 2:30 a.m. Sunday, no aircraft had landed there for 10 hours because of thick fog.

The board of trade said that after being told that the visibility was down to the 100 metres in freezing fog, "the pilot elected to make an approach, indicating that if he overshot he would divert to another airport."

The pilot survived.

One of the victims was a Chicago co-ed, 18-year-old Karen Mix, whose father is a Pan American Airways employee on assignment with Ariana Afghan Airlines in Kabul.

Miss Mix was returning to Chicago after spending Christmas with her family in Kabul.

Also killed were William and Anne Jones, who lived in a country house that was destroyed as the airliner plowed into it and exploded.

Their 18-month-old daughter Beverly survived.

Terrorists Attack, Kill South Vietnam Minister

SAIGON (CP) — South Vietnam's education minister died in a terrorist attack today, the victim of the first terrorist attack against a major political figure in more than a year.

Across the country the Viet Cong and North Vietnamese generally avoided battle as they have done for several months.

U.S. and South Vietnamese forces reported more small clashes, arms finds, air strikes and light shelling. Fifty to 60 large-scale sweeping operations were under way, including a drive by 5,000 U.S. and government troops around the abandoned fortress of Khe Sanh and a U.S. push in the Plain of Reeds west of Saigon.

Spokesmen said the big sweep operations are designed to keep the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong off balance, to ferret out their supplies and to prevent any massing of enemy forces for an offensive.

Education Minister Dr. Le Minh Tri, 46, was gravely injured after an explosion destroyed his car in downtown Saigon, killed his driver and wounded two bodyguards and a pedestrian. Tri died in French-run Grail Hospital.

One report said a Vietnamese on a motorcycle threw a grenade into the car and escaped. But there was some speculation that the blast might have been a time bomb secured to the car.

Saigon has been relatively free of terrorist incidents during the preceding two weeks.

Russians Hope To Land Space Vehicle On Venus

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union launched an unmanned space ship Sunday on a 155,000,000-mile journey that it hopes will end in mid-May with a soft landing on Venus.

The official news agency Tass said the Venus-V vehicle was photographed 90,000 miles from earth by an observatory near Alma Ata, Kazakhstan. It said the photographs were sent to Moscow and "the quality of the pictures is good."

Tass said Venus V would continue atmospheric studies begun by the Soviet spacecraft Venus IV, which made a soft landing on the cloud-covered planet Oct. 18, 1967. Venus IV showed the planet to be hot and inhospitable, displaying features of an atmosphere consisting almost entirely of carbon monoxide.

Venus V, weighing about 14 tons, was first put into earth orbit and then launched into outer space from a launch over Africa. Tass said all equipment on board was functioning normally and ground controllers could make course corrections to ensure reaching the goal.

Stressing the difficulty of a Venus shot, a Tass science commentator wrote: "It would be much easier for a marksman to solve the problem of hitting a flying honeybee from the window of a moving motorcar. However, great experience of interplanetary flights of automatic stations has been accumulated by the Soviet Union."

Search Underway For 31 Seamen

TOKYO (AP) — Planes and ships searched for 280 miles southeast of Tokyo Bay for 31 Japanese seamen missing after a 33-man Japanese oil carrier split open and sank in rough seas Sunday. Officials said there was little possibility of finding any of them alive.

Two crew members were rescued by a passing freighter several hours after the Bolivar Maru sank. One of the survivors, said the 33 men tried to board life boats but were hurled overboard before they could launch them. They could not be seen.

Rain Clears Fog On Lower Coast

VANCOUVER (CP) — Rain early today washed away heavy fog lying over the Lower Mainland Sunday which had closed Vancouver International Airport.

Visibility was nil at the airport during the fog with the temperature at 33 degrees. The fog blanket was extensive enough to rule out Abbotsford airport, 40 miles east in the Fraser Valley, as an alternate field for Vancouver-bound flights. Visibility there was only five-eighths of a mile late Sunday.

Hundreds of passengers who expected to be in Vancouver Sunday night ended up instead in Calgary, Edmonton, Victoria and Penikese as flights were diverted.

Hundreds more who had planned to leave Vancouver didn't get off the ground.

Highways Claim 21 In Canada

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

At least 31 persons died accidentally in Canada during the weekend, 21 in traffic.

Ontario had the highest toll with nine deaths, four in traffic.

Two persons found in a parked car died of carbon monoxide poisoning, one when a train struck his snowmobile, one in a fire and another one when his car fell off a jack and crushed him.

Quebec followed with five fatalities, four on the highways and one when his snowmobile struck a stationary locomotive.

British Columbia and Alberta each recorded four accidental deaths. In B.C., two persons died in traffic, one of carbon monoxide poisoning while working on a car in a garage and one in a fall. Alberta's fatalities were all in traffic.

New Brunswick had three fatalities, two in traffic and one in a fire and Saskatchewan and Prince Edward Island had two each, all in traffic.

Manitoba had one traffic fatality and Newfoundland had a drowning.

Nova Scotia was the only province which remained fatality-free.

Need India Says Speaker

NEW DELHI (Reuters) — Lucien Lamoureux, speaker of the Canadian House of Commons, said today he hopes India will remain a member of the Commonwealth.

He could not think of the Commonwealth surviving without India, he told Deputy Prime Minister Morarji Desai during a meeting here, informed sources said.

Desai told Lamoureux, leader of a visiting eight-man Canadian parliamentary delegation, that India values Canada's friendship and assistance and that the Commonwealth should be preserved, strengthened and enlarged.

The Canadian Group, which arrived here Sunday, also met the Indian head of state, President Zakir Husain.

The delegation visited Mahatma Gandhi's memorial at Rajghat on the banks of the River Jumna and an agricultural research institute.

PUBLIC ASKED, HELP POLICE TRACK DOWN THREE SLAYERS

OTTAWA (CP) — Provincial police today issued an appeal to the public to help them track down three armed men in their 20s who killed two motorists in cold blood Friday night.

They also appealed to an unknown motorist who passed the scene on a secluded section of Highway 44, about 25 miles west of Ottawa, shortly after the apparently pointless crime.

Police said this mystery car, which did not stop, ran over the head of one of the victims as his body lay sprawled on the highway.

Gerald MacDonald, 31, an Ottawa service station operator, and his uncle, Kenneth D. Vallee, 42, of St. Clair Shores, Mich., were hit in the head and upper body by a total of nine shots.

Kelowna Civil Servants Await Slow-Down Order

The slow-down will be speeded up.

The executive of the B.C. Government Employees' Association said Sunday it is asking the 12,000 members to intensify its three-week-old work-to-rule campaign in the province.

But word of the association's decision has not reached the 160 civil servants in Kelowna, according to Frank Brown, president of the association's Kelowna branch.

"I haven't heard a thing," Mr. Brown said today, adding that a meeting was held in Vancouver Saturday by the executive. "We should hear from them just about any time."

Kelowna's work-to-rule campaign has had indecisive effects in the city as the Christmas-New Year's holiday put a damper on the slow-down.

Mr. Brown said he could not yet comment on the new crack-down from Vancouver.

The campaign now involved about half the province's civil servants, and reaches into most departments of government.

Ed O'Connor, general secretary of the association, said all members will be asked to intensify the campaign at their local levels.

"We're not going to spell out particulars at this time, but the intensification should soon have a noticeable effect," he said.

The campaign, he said, results from sheer frustration among government employees about the fact they have no right to appeal recommendations of the Civil Service Commission.

The association seeks wage levels comparable with those paid in private industry and retroactive salary adjustments to April, 1968.

Sharp Joins In Session Over NATO Commitments

LONDON (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau and External Affairs Minister Sharp spent 3½ hours in session with Prime Minister Wilson and British cabinet ministers today at 10 Downing Street.

It is understood that Wilson and his defence secretary, Denis Healey, did their best to persuade the Canadian leader not to cut any defence commitments in NATO.

Britain previously had urged this course in a note to Ottawa, but Wilson and Healey tried to reinforce their arguments at today's session.

Britain is assigning troops to NATO that she has brought back from the Far East. The Canadian view is that Britain is using domestic policy to put pressure on the Canadians to strengthen their forces.

As well as Healey, Wilson was flanked by Foreign and Commonwealth Secretary Michael Stewart, treasury chief Roy Jenkins and Anthony Crosland, president of the board of trade.

Aside from NATO, discussions ranged over East-West relations, the United Nations and the world economic situation. There was no indication that arguments were resumed over the issues of Rhodesia and Nigeria.

Trudeau was publicly disagreed with Britain's policy on Rhodesia and on the issue of Britain sending arms to Nigeria.

In line with his declared intent of listening rather than speaking at the Commonwealth conference, Trudeau spent most of the meeting with the British ministers asking questions.

The Evening News splashed a front-page story saying British officials are showing "some concern" over "suggestions that Mr. Trudeau is contemplating a review of Canada's role in European defence."

Referring to the conference between Prime Ministers Trudeau and Wilson at 10 Downing Street, the paper says:

"Mr. Wilson is no doubt anxious to put some friendly pressure on the Canadians to maintain their contribution to European defence at a time when Britain is concentrating her efforts in this area."

Before today's meeting with Wilson, Trudeau had said after a weekend confrontation with the British leader that he is ready to accept a "second best" solution for Rhodesia if the "first best" is not attainable.

By "first best" he meant retaining the old British pledge that there would be no independence for that country before majority Negro rule. By "second best" he meant a solution which British Prime Minister Wilson and Rhodesian Premier Ian Smith could work out that would be acceptable to the Rhodesian people, both black and white.

He said Sunday Britain has departed from its original promise to black Rhodesians that the breakaway colony would not get legal independence before majority African rule.

This statement at a news conference put him on the side of President Kenneth Kaunda of Zambia and some other African Commonwealth leaders.

However, unlike Kaunda, Trudeau questioned whether the Rhodesian issue should be raised at the Commonwealth prime ministers conference. It was largely an illusion that the conference, which opens Tuesday, could solve the problem.

Trudeau is scheduled to see Kaunda today privately at the latter's hotel.

The Canadian leader also told reporters that he tried to get answers from Wilson on why Britain is shipping arms to Nigeria but got answers "that we all know."

Informal sources said Trudeau and Wilson went at it hot and heavy on the latter issue during a weekend meeting.

Trudeau said no country should be shipping arms to Nigeria. As a matter of principle, he always put military solutions in last place.

Trudeau had annoyed the British government even before leaving Canada by making public the conference agenda in advance, something never done before.

Western and Asian leaders at the conference want to soft-pedal the Rhodesian issues.

TIME FOR CHANGE Australia, New Zealand, Malaysia and Singapore, for instance, feel it is time for Commonwealth leaders to discuss other matters after spending the last two conferences, both in 1960, almost exclusively on African matters.

Canada feels that all arguments on Rhodesia have been exhausted and that the war between Nigeria and secessionist Biafra is an internal affair.

Canadian officials do not deny, however, that the Rhodesian issue could split the conference and even the Commonwealth. It has been Canada's policy all along to try to avoid such a Commonwealth breakup.

Rhodesia is ruled by a white-minority government. There are some 220,000 whites in the country compared with some 4,000,000 blacks. Rhodesia unilaterally declared itself independent of Britain Nov. 11, 1965.

African Commonwealth leaders like Kaunda and Presidents Julius Nyerere of Tanzania, Milton Obote of Uganda and Kamuzu Banda of Malawi say the Rhodesian issue must be discussed at length.

Trudeau said he may express this general view to the conference but that he does not plan any specific initiatives in these fields at this time.

Trudeau and Wilson spent the weekend at Chequers, British prime ministerial country-house about 40 miles west of London.

North Ireland's Premier May Call Out Riot Police

"We are sick of marchers and counter-marchers," said Northern Ireland's premier, Sir James D. O'Neill, as he threatened Sunday night to call out riot police to quell the religious warfare raging in his territory. O'Neill called a meeting of his cabinet today. There were indications it would consider a ban on all political parades and demonstrations.

Mohawk Indians tested the strength of the Jay Treaty of 1794 again Sunday but came out losers. The Indians, led by Kahn-Tineto Horn, a fiery warrior from the Caughnawaga reserve near Montreal, tried to bring goods duty-free from the United States across the Seaway International Bridge to Ontario. They claim that under the treaty they are exempted from duty payments. However, the Supreme Court of Canada, in 1956, said payment of custom duties applies to all Canadians.

Senator Edmund S. Muskie says he wants to explore his prospects for a presidential try in 1972, and does not discount the possibility of a contest against Senator Edward M. Kennedy. The Maine Democrat said Sunday he would take advantage of what he called the opportunity opened by his Democratic vice-presidential campaign to take soundings throughout the country.

Continued American neutrality and Russian sabre-rattling will lead to a new outbreak of hostilities between the Israeli and Arab nations, an Israeli army officer said Sunday. Maj.-Gen. Mattityahu Peled, regarded as one of Israel's heroes in the 1967 six-day war against the Arabs, spoke to 600 persons at a fund-raising banquet for Metropolitan Toronto's drive to aid the Israel Federation of Labor.

Violet and Daisy Hilton, Siamese twins, were found dead Saturday night at their home in Charlotte, N.C. The twins, believed to be in their early 60s, moved to Charlotte about five years ago after making a movie entitled Chained For Life. Their bodies were found by police after their employer and a neighbor reported several unsuccessful attempts to contact the two women.

Police said Sunday they are investigating the reported theft of sculptures valued at $50,000 from a Montreal apartment. A police spokesman said the theft was reported by the owner, Guy Joussement, a CBC employee who returned at the weekend from a two-week vacation in Mexico. Mr. Joussement said the 143 pieces — some dating back to antiquity — were destined for permanent loan to the Montreal Museum of Fine Arts later this month. Also taken was an 18th-century Portuguese bedspread.

Lucien Saulnier, Montreal executive committee chairman, said Sunday a recent rash of bombings in the Montreal area may damage Quebec's economy in 1969. Mr. Saulnier said in an interview that the "climate of unrest and fear" could stop investments and may cause capital "to emigrate from this city and this province." He called on citizens "with any influence" to assist police in checking the rash of bombings and bomb threats.

American ferry pilot Robert Iba was rescued Sunday after spending two nights on a 5,000-foot-high ice cap in Greenland. Iba, who was picked up by a Danish helicopter and taken to Narsarsuaq in southern Greenland, landed on the ice cap Friday while ferrying a British light aircraft from England to Fort Lauderdale, Fla., where he owns an air taxi service.

Mercury Editor Retires At 71

GUELPH, Ont. (CP) — Joseph F. Collins, 71, managing editor of The Mercury since 1953, has retired after 48 years with the daily newspaper.

He is succeeded by Lloyd Bibby, 52, a native of Guelph and chief editorial writer at The Mercury since 1968.

Joe Collins joined The Mercury as a cub reporter in 1920 and during his long career held every position on the editorial staff except that of women's editor, including sports editor and city editor.

In 1967 he was honored for 25 years service as correspondent for The Canadian Press, national news-gathering co-operative.

Mr. Collins, born in Renfrew, Ont., and raised in Guelph, is active in local community affairs.

Mr. Bibby was chief editorial writer with the St. Thomas Times-Journal before joining The Mercury two years ago.

Ludwig Erhart, former West German chancellor, has called for a stronger and larger European Common Market and lashed out at French efforts to establish political control over Western Europe. Erhart also said one of the most urgent tasks facing NATO is to reconsider the alliance "afresh with a view to its internal consolidation."

A 59-year-old man Sunday received the heart of a 14-year-old boy who had been injured in an auto-pedestrian accident Thursday. The heart was given to Otto Edwin Chancy of Elkhardt, Kan., who had been suffering from a severe heart ailment. Ted Bowen, administrator of Methodist Hospital in Houston, said Chancy "is progressing satisfactorily in the immediate post-operative period."

Pope Paul told a group of new bishops they must defend orthodox Roman Catholic teaching against attempts to change it to fit contemporary tastes. In apparent references to recent disputes between conservative bishops and progressive theologians, the Pope told the prelates of the Church that it is their duty to defend and interpret doctrine. He said doctrine would be made acceptable and understandable to modern men without impairing orthodoxy.

Adam Clayton Powell, said Sunday his first piece of business now that he is back in Congress will be to propose the establishment of a task force to study the federal anti-poverty program. The Harlem Democrat regained a seat in the House of Representatives Friday after exclusion for nearly two years for allegedly misusing payroll and travel funds.

The United Kingdom Citizenship Committee in Kenya is to ask the Commonwealth conference this week for a "bill of rights" for non-native British citizens, it was announced in Nairobi Sunday. Kasik Shah, representing the committee, told a news conference the group would put three points before the conference: The need for a multi-racial approach to immigration; the need to amend Britain's 1968 immigration act; and the need for a fresh approach to British citizenship.

Smith Warns Of World-Wide Racial Violence

LONDON (AP) — American-style racial violence could develop on an international scale in the next 20 years unless present-day trends can be reversed, the Canadian head of the Commonwealth secretariat warned today.

In a report released on the eve of the Commonwealth leaders' conference, Secretary-General Arnold Smith said: "Unless we succeed in reversing some of the major world trends, it is by no means impossible that in the decade or two ahead something of the troubles which have agonized so many American cities these past two summers could develop in a vastly greater scale, within and between continents." The warning will be distributed to heads of government and officials from 28 Commonwealth countries at the summit which opens here Tuesday. It is contained in a report covering two days of the secretariat's activities since the last Commonwealth leaders' conference in 1966.

Several British newspapers have assailed the multi-racial Commonwealth as outdated and implied the conference is pointless.

Israel Rejects Proposal For Middle East Peace

JERUSALEM (AP) — Israel has rejected a Soviet proposal for a Middle East peace sponsored by the Big Four. King Hussein of Jordan and the Egyptian press welcomed the Soviet peace formula, and one Cairo paper warned that an "immediate, decisive" effort is needed to save off another war.

Foreign Minister Abba Eban told the Israeli cabinet Sunday Israel has informed Britain and the United States that the Soviet proposals "could not serve as a basis for a framework for discussion" because: —They demanded total withdrawal of Israeli troops from Arab lands occupied in the war of June, 1967, without establishment of peace. —They did not provide for "secure and recognized boundaries." —There was no reference to Israel's demand that Arab-Israeli relations be put on a "contractual basis."

—They did not guarantee Israel shipping rights through the Suez Canal and the Gulf of Aqaba. An Israeli government spokesman here did not spell out details of the Soviet plan, but the semi-official Cairo newspaper Al-Ahram reported it contained a "time schedule" for implementing provisions of the November, 1967, UN Security Council resolution. Tension remained high in Israeli-occupied territory.

In attempts to counter Arab resistance, Israeli authorities destroyed six Gaza Strip homes of alleged guerrillas; sentenced three young Arabs in the West Bank city of Hebron to 20 years in jail for sabotage; and jailed nine Bedouin tribesmen from the Sinai Desert for six years on charges of trying to sell to Jordan arms and ammunition they had collected after the 1967 war.

administration, Nixon's appointment of Lodge came as a shot in the arm. The Saigon leaders regard Lodge, whom they got to know as U.S. ambassador in Saigon, as a hardline hawk and a good friend to the present military regime.

Lodge's statement in Bonn Sunday night that he regards a settlement in Vietnam "of supreme importance" seemed to mean little to them.

ON GOOD TERMS South Vietnam's chief delegate to the talks, Ambassador Pham Dang Lam, has had more than one stormy session with Harriman. But Lam, a former foreign minister, was on fine personal terms with Lodge.

Leading members of President Nguyen Van Thieu's government focused much of their disappointment with President Johnson's decision to halt the bombing of North Vietnam on Harriman. Vice-President Nguyen Cao Ky spoke of misunderstandings with Harriman and attributed them to the 77-year-old envoy's failing hearing. Harriman wears a hearing aid.

Trudeau's London Date Talks About Encounter

LONDON (CP) — Pierre Trudeau's first London date is still talking about the brief encounter two days after the event, disclosing that she is a Canadian-born divorced woman with a child and that she believes she has a strong personality and knows "how to capture people."

While informants said the Canadian prime minister did not intend to see her again, Eva Rittinghausen, 35, said in an interview today there may be a "slight possibility" of another encounter.

The tall blonde, who has 20 photographs of herself in her high-rent flat in Belgravia, said she met Trudeau at the home of Renault St. Laurent, son of the former Canadian prime minister, last August and that they have been "in contact" since then. They lunched at a Chelsea club Saturday and then strolled along Chelsea thoroughfares.

TRUDEAU NOT HAPPY When reports began appearing in London newspapers quoting Mrs. Rittinghausen, Trudeau said he rather wished she hadn't spoken to the press. He said also that there had been no love at first sight as Mrs. Rittinghausen had suggested.

"Do you mean that he is not absolutely for it?" Mrs. Rittinghausen asked a reporter. She didn't know that Trudeau frowned on the disclosures she had made.

"Still, whatever I have said should not be against him," she added. Mrs. Rittinghausen, who described herself as a member of the jet set, said she was born in Kentville, N.S. and was taken to Germany at the age of six. She said her parents still live in Germany but that she had three brothers, two in Canada and one in Seattle. One brother manages a hotel in Vancouver and the other is a Nova Scotia farmer.

She declined to discuss her married life but said she is independently wealthy and that she has a son, 12, living "on the continent."

Their car was a total wreck. The only Christmas present the family received was the good will of a young U.S. seaman who was headed for Vietnam and offered the family the use of his late model car.

"It was wonderful, and we were grateful," Mrs. Goliniski said, "but we were in no mood or condition for travelling."

Released from hospital, the family still had its problems. Bad weather prevented them from flying directly home and they were forced to take a succession of buses until they reached Vancouver when they caught a flight to Prince George.

Recovering at home, Mr. Goliniski said the accident has not put the family off travelling.

"You can't let an accident do that," he said.

Sirhan On Trial Tuesday For Murder Of Kennedy

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Sirhan Bishara Sirhan, a 24-year-old Jordanian charged with murdering Senator Robert F. Kennedy, goes on trial Tuesday in a heavily guarded courtroom where windows have been reinforced with steel as a security measure.

Sirhan, dark and slight, is accused of shooting Kennedy in a narrow kitchen corridor of the Ambassador Hotel June 5 minutes after the New York Democrat proclaimed victory in California's presidential primary. The trial may last more than two months. Both the defence and the prosecution estimate nearly 200 witnesses may be called.

Because the small courtroom in the Los Angeles Hall of Justice can accommodate only 75 spectators, accredited reporters will view the proceedings on a closed circuit television monitor in a room four floors below.

The defendant's mother, Mary, and two brothers in the Los Angeles area plan to attend the trial. The father is staying near Jerusalem.

Superior Court Judge Herbert V. Walker, 68, will be on the bench. Twenty-one years ago, he decreed the death penalty for Caryl Chessman, who died in the gas chamber in 1960 on kidnapping convictions after a 12-year legal battle.

There will be three prosecuting attorneys and three for the defence.

The chief advocate for Sirhan is Grant B. Cooper, 65, a former president of the Los Angeles County Bar Association and an alumnus of the Los Angeles district attorney's office. His greatest reputation is as a criminal lawyer.

In a related development Cooper, who recently defended one of five men convicted of conspiracy to cheat wealthy members of the Friar's Club at cards, has been ordered by the judge in that trial to explain how he obtained a secret transcript of grand jury testimony in the Friar's case.

U.S. Attorney Matt Byrne told U.S. District Court Judge Francis Whelan last Friday that Cooper refused to explain how he obtained the transcript.

Cooper's aides will include Russell B. Parsons, 69, a veteran of nearly 5,000 cases, one resulting in a landmark California Supreme Court ruling that illegally obtained evidence can not be used against a defendant.

Another is Emilie Zola Bernman, 65, of New York City, best known for his defence of a marine sergeant who led 75 recruits on a night march into a South Carolina swamp where six died. Staff Sgt. Matthew C. McKeon was convicted of negligent homicide.

The lawyers, barred from commenting publicly on the case before it goes to trial, have not indicated the grounds on which they'll defend Sirhan. They are expected to plead Sirhan guilty to a lesser offence than murder, one which will not involve the death penalty.

Forecasters Quite Correct About Higher Interest Rate

By KEN SMITH Canadian Press Business Editor

It didn't take long for those economic forecasters who had predicted still-higher interest rates in 1969 to be proved right. As the new year started last week, the government announced that National Housing Act mortgage rates had been lifted to 9 1/2 per cent—a record since 1957.

Then Royal Trust Co. of Montreal raised the interest rates on its guaranteed investment certificate by between one-quarter and three-eighths of a percentage point to a record 7 1/2 per cent on its five-year series.

The change, said an official, reflected the company's assessment of current market conditions. General Motors Acceptance Corp. of Canada Ltd. raised the rates on its short-term notes by one-eighth of one per cent to 6 1/2 per cent on its 60- to 365-day notes.

Canadian Acceptance Corp. Ltd. pushed its short-term rates up by about one-quarter of a percentage point to a range from 6 1/4 per cent on its 270- to 364-day notes to 6 3/4 per cent on its 60- to 179-day notes.

No decline is seen of any decline in the rates, at least in the near future, said one financial company official. What effect is this new trend to higher interest going to have on expansion during the year?

Answers from economists and executives are hedged with comment about variable factors, but the consensus appears to be little, if any. One senior businessman explained:

"If we're planning, say, a big new plant, we assess what the probable money costs are going to be. If the rates rise an eighth or even a quarter of one per cent more than had been expected, it shouldn't make much difference."

"Any project on the books that's counting on such a slim margin that such an increase makes a difference should have been scrapped anyway."

Does this line of thinking apply to potential house buyers and the new NHA rates? There's been a lot of talk for some time about buyer resistance, but there has been little evidence of it showing so far.

WON'T STOP ANYONE

The new rates are expected to add about $6 a month to the costs of an average NHA mortgage, and says one builder, that is not going to stop anyone who was seriously in the market for a house before the rise.

The trouble is that, even before the latest NHA rate increase, it was generally accepted that a person needed an annual income of $8,000 or $9,000 to finance a new house in metropolitan areas and, while they still might be able to afford a house, the majority of wage earners are well below that scale of earnings.

Elsewhere on the business scene, Southern Building Guide reported that the total dollar value of new building contracts let during 1968 reached a record $3,492,000.

That was 7.8 per cent above the 1967 level and 3.6 per cent higher than the previous record established in 1965.

Christmas Trip A Nightmare For B.C. Family

PRINCE GEORGE, B.C. (CP) — The Alex Goliniski family finally arrived home on the weekend after their Christmas vacation trip to Disneyland turned into a nightmare on a snow-bound highway in Washington State.

The Goliniskis and their four children, aged six to 11, planned to spend Christmas at Disneyland, but were involved in a collision near Vancouver, Wash., that left them with assorted broken bones and lacerations and kept them all in hospital until Friday.

Their car was a total wreck. The only Christmas present the family received was the good will of a young U.S. seaman who was headed for Vietnam and offered the family the use of his late model car.

"It was wonderful, and we were grateful," Mrs. Goliniski said, "but we were in no mood or condition for travelling."

Released from hospital, the family still had its problems. Bad weather prevented them from flying directly home and they were forced to take a succession of buses until they reached Vancouver when they caught a flight to Prince George.

Recovering at home, Mr. Goliniski said the accident has not put the family off travelling.

"You can't let an accident do that," he said.

Local calling will be introduced between Kelowna and Westbank January 8th, 1969

Starting at 12:01 a.m. January 8th, 1969, telephone calls between Kelowna (762) (763) and the Westbank (768) telephone exchange which includes Westside Cays and Green Bay areas, can be dialed as local calls.

Long distance charges will be eliminated and it will no longer be necessary to dial "Operator" or "112" to place calls between these two places. Simply dial the local number you desire.

Please note, however, that long distance charges will continue to apply on calls between Westbank exchange and the Okanagan Mission (764) and Rutland (765) areas.

No Fears After Decade Of Tests

Eleven years of testing have failed to confirm suspicions about a fruit industry problem. The suspicion was that nematodes were mainly responsible for the poor performance of many Okanagan fruit trees. More than a decade of testing has not backed up the suspicions, says W. R. Orchard of the Canada Department of Agriculture's research station at Saanichton, near Victoria. The southern Vancouver Island research station is one of a series of testing and proving grounds operated by the department, similar to the station at Summerland.

Concern about the poor growth and fruit yield of so-called "decline" trees arose in the early 1950s when the condition appeared in many orchards of different kinds of fruit trees. Pears were most affected.

Causes were studied intensively and obvious ones were remedied. It was not the full answer, however, and parasitic nematodes became suspect. An extensive survey in 1954 and 1955 revealed widespread infestation of two types of nematodes—Pratylenchus, which invades and feeds within the plant roots, and Paratylenchus, which clings to the root surface and feeds through a tiny "spear" forced into the tissues. Survey findings also indicated the species were not indigenous to the region and in view of this it was considered likely that planting stocks from infested nurseries served as the means of dissemination.

A hot water treatment scheduled for nursery stocks was worked out which killed nematodes without harm to the plants. While it was an effective safeguard against the spread of the pests from nurseries to uncontaminated land, there was still the matter of infestations that were introduced earlier. In 1957, an experiment was launched to find out if the nematodes, once introduced, maintain or increase their population and to what extent they affect the vigor and yield of fruit trees.

45 TREES

For the project, 45 apricot, peach, cherry, pear and apple trees were planted in soil infested with the nematodes. Another 45 trees treated with hot water were used as controls in soil free of infestation.

Nematode numbers were determined every second year during the experiment and there was no evidence of rapid population growth at any period, says the researcher. The Pratylenchus species became well established in the trees growing in infested soil and its total showed an increase at each count. However, its gain appeared to be proportionate to root growth; its population density per unit volume of soil and roots remained about the same during the 11 years. Paratylenchus nematodes were less successful in maintaining their population and counts of them varied greatly.

In any case, neither species had a significant effect on the vigor and yield of the trees even after more than a decade of testing. The absence of any apparent serious effect probably is due to the trees developing additional roots to replace those injured by the nematodes, the researcher says.

Police Blame Icy Roads For Weekend Accidents

Police were kept busy during the weekend investigating traffic accidents, although only one person was injured in the smashes.

She was Lidia Gage, Okanagan Centre, a passenger in a car that went out of control on Highway 97 near Winfield early Sunday. She is the daughter of Carl Gage, driver of the vehicle.

The girl was treated and released at Kelowna General Hospital.

Police said the car slid on the icy road and went into a ditch. No estimate of damage was given by RCMP.

A second accident occurred at the same location when the police cruiser that brought investigating RCMP constables to the scene was struck by another car slipping on the ice.

Police said today the cruiser was parked off the highway, but was hit broadside by a vehicle driven by William Ralston, Oyama. About $200 damage was done to the police car, and $50 to the other car.

A car driven by Donald Launik, Kelowna, was demolished in a collision with another vehicle Sunday at 1:15 p.m. on Glenmore Drive. Police blamed icy roads for the accident that

Three Face Theft Charge

Three men faced charges in magistrate's court today of possession of a stolen snow vehicle.

Wayne, Herbert and Thomas Stone, all of Winfield, were remanded without plea to Jan. 13 while a date for a preliminary hearing is set. RCMP laid the charges near Winfield Saturday.

Wayne Stone is also charged with possession of a sawed-off rifle, of barrel less than 20 inches long. He reserved plea and election on the charge until Jan. 13.

Cash bail of $200 was set today for Reginald O'Brien, Lac La Hache, charged Sunday with assault causing bodily harm. He pleaded not guilty and will appear for trial Jan. 16.

Trudeau Keeps Wilson Waiting

LONDON (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau kept Prime Minister Wilson of Britain waiting in the doorway of 10 Downing Street today while he hurried across the roadway to shake hands with some well-wishers.

As Trudeau and External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp left their limousine in front of the British premier's official residence, a small group across the road put up a faint cheer for the Canadian leader.

Trudeau ran across the narrow road and shook hands with a couple and a young girl. He later apologized to Wilson for the brief delay.

Irascible Diatribes In City?

Margaret (Ma) Murray, B.C.'s next-to-legendary publisher of the Lillooet-Bridge River News, is expected to be guest speaker at the Kelowna Chamber of Commerce annual dinner meeting, Jan. 17 at the Capri.

Notorious for her irascible diatribes on Social Credit government and the newspaper industry, Ma Murray has agreed to speak at the chamber's major meeting of the year. As many as 300 or more Kelowna businessmen should be on hand to listen to her talk—which could be on anything.

CLOUDY weather is forecast for Kelowna Tuesday. A few snowflurries today with freezing rain in the main valleys. Winds should be light. Low tonight and high Tuesday are forecast for 20 and 30. The high and low recorded in Kelowna Sunday were 32 and 26, compared with 33 and 14 on the same date one year ago.

ANNUAL SNOW REMOVAL CHORES . . . slow and easy best advice

DOCTOR CAUTIONS

Efforts With Shovel Might Be Your Last

Don't think shovelling snow today will be easier just because the thaw has set in.

"One shovel stroke today might take as much exertion as 10 in colder weather," warned Dr. A. S. Underhill, general practitioner at the Underhill clinic.

"There is a great increase in weight per shovelful when melting snow is mixed with water. At the top of the pile, wet snow may weigh three to four times as much as dry snow, and at the bottom, where it's straight water, it may be 10 times as much."

Dr. Underhill advised Central Okanagan residents—especially those over 40—to be extra cautious while shovelling melting snow to avoid the risk of a heart attack.

At least nine deaths during the past few days in the Greater Vancouver area have been attributed directly to a heavy snowfall. All deaths involved men over 40 who had been shovelling snow.

"I would say the frantic way people go about shovelling is the culprit in many cases," said Dr. Underhill. "If they want to get unstuck, they will push themselves vigorously—more so than they're normally used to."

"If they would do it for 15 or 20 minutes, say, then go inside and sit and relax, then go outside and do a bit more, they would be all right. But I've seen people go out and shovel for an hour or two at a stretch."

The shoveller's mental and emotional state can also endanger his health, said Dr. Underhill. If he's mad at someone while shovelling, he could increase his chances of a heart attack.

Dr. Underhill said the easy-does-it regimen should do for most adults in reasonably good health who have no history of heart trouble.

For those who have suffered heart attacks, he suggested, better leave the job to someone else.

Winter Conditions Remain On B.C.'s Interior Highways

Highway 97 in the Kelowna area was reported partly bare with compact snow conditions and sanded, in the department of highways road report of 7:30 a.m. today.

The Kelowna-Beaverdell road had some compact snow conditions on lower levels, slippery at higher levels. Sanding had been completed and winter tires or chains were advised.

The Vernon-Lumby-Cherryville road had compact snow conditions and had been sanded through to Cherryville.

The Fraser Canyon area was reported overcast, with mixed rain and snow; the road was in good winter condition. Motorists advised to watch for falling rocks and winter tires or chains were advised.

New snow fell throughout the Rogers Pass. The road was in good winter condition and plowing and sanding was in progress. Winter tires or chains were advised.

The Monashee Pass had a "compact snow road," with some slippery sections. Plowing and sanding had been completed. Winter tires and chains were advised.

Women Back In City Hall

Kelowna's city hall is back to normal.

The cold snap, which sent all female members of city hall staff home for the day last Monday, is over and normal business has resumed.

The trouble arose with the furnace—only one of many which failed as temperatures plunged past 20 below zero. The furnace quit out a week ago Sunday and as a result the offices were "quite chilly" the next morning.

Needless to say, the only gallant thing to do was to send all the members of the so called "wenker" sex home.

WATER DAMAGE

Frozen water pipes last week resulted in water damage to about eight rooms at Kelowna Secondary School. Rooms affected when the water pipes burst were the kitchen, women's staff room, cafeteria and four or five offices on the second floor. Damage was done to one wall of the women's staff room and to the ceiling of the cafeteria. Principal Peter McLoughlin had no estimate of the amount of damage.

SEEN and HEARD

Occasionally you come across a person who, has exactly the right name for the job he does. Such a case is an employee of a Canada Department of Agriculture research station on Vancouver Island. He spends his working days dealing with things agricultural and is aptly named W. R. Orchard.

The area was visited by giant turkeys during the week-end or at least that's what it looks like. High winds Saturday blew small branches from trees in many areas. The twigs and branches then sank into the snow leaving what looked like tracks from a post-Christmas nightgown of giant turkeys stalking an over-enter.

Christmas decorations are coming down. A city crew was seen early today plowing its way through the snow to remove the Christmas pagoda scene that has graced the west end of Bernard Avenue since mid-December. Evergreen day.

bought and the nativity scene figures were loaded onto a truck and spirited away to wherever the city keeps them until next Christmas. Expected to follow were the candy canes and wreaths decorating lamp standards along Bernard Ave.

The Kelowna RCMP detachment has a new member. Const. William Andrews, 27, began duties today with the detachment's identification section. A native of Selkirk, Man., Const. Andrews has served at various detachments in B.C. most recently for three years at Burnaby.

The annual banquet of champions, which honors Kelowna and district athletes, will probably be held on the first long weekend in the new year, to enable youths at university to attend. Mayor R. F. Parkinson said today. He said the banquet will be mentioned in his inaugural speech to city council tomorrow.

WARMLY DRESSED FOR RETURN TO CLASSES

Lucky for some the cold spell which gripped the area a week ago did not come a week later, or students at district elementary and secondary schools might have had to wear all wool mittens and even then make a hurried dash for school to escape from the cold. Still winter weather even this week with the mercury risen to a comfortable level demands preparedness. The students must bundle up warmly against the elements and rubbers of the warmer variety are an absolute necessity. For some students, returning to school after a lengthy 10-day holiday isn't much of a treat but most students, at least at the elementary level, are probably glad to be back. (Courier Photo)

BEDSIDE CHAT

No Epidemic But Flu Here

No one is immune to the Hong Kong flu and Dr. Clarke has more than a few symptoms as proof.

Dr. D. A. Clarke, medical health officer of the South Okanagan Health Unit early today described the bug which has laid him and a number of other Valley residents low.

The flu is having widespread effects on the area and more people are being affected, he said. The virus has spread to include a high percentage of doctors and nurses at Kelowna

General Hospital many of whom have been unable to fulfil their commitments. Because of influenza and to protect patients from exposure to the virus, visiting has been voluntarily restricted by the public, with only relatives of patients allowed to visit.

Other hospitals in Burns Lake and Summerland have made similar regulations.

A fair amount of medical personnel have come down with the flu. The hospital is being pressed for beds and is pretty well jammed, said Dr. Clarke.

A notice Saturday said the hospital might have to cancel elective surgery if staff absenteeism caused through sickness continues to grow.

"There seems to be no doubt in my mind the flu is moving through the community and is quite prevalent," said Dr. Clarke.

"It seems to be involving more adults and workers than children," Dr. Clarke recalls four doctors who have been laid up by the virus since the flu invaded the area.

Dr. Clarke says there is a tendency by some people to get back on the job too soon. When people feel the symptoms they should get medical attention and go to bed, regulating their activity until they get over the illness, to avoid complications which could result in pneumonia.

Meanwhile, the flu seems to have selected older people, says Dr. Clarke but if it goes to younger people the problem could become greater.

Indications early today were the absentee rate at both elementary and secondary schools was no higher than usual, although with the incidence of flu in the area, Dr. Clarke believes there might be some apprehension among parents about sending their children back to the classroom.

Fred Macklin, secretary-treasurer, board of trustees, school district 23, said "at the moment there appears to be no sign of a real problem."

Mini-Blitz For Jan. 22

The motto of this year's Central Okanagan Community Chest campaign seems to be slow and organizers hope, sure.

The annual United Appeal drive, which began Sept. 30, is still continuing and the funds, although flowing in slower than initially, are still coming in. The latest receipts push the total collected to $54,731, or 94.3 per cent of the $58,000 quota.

A mini blitz will be launched Jan. 22 in an effort to achieve the goal. The residential drive started Oct. 15. Funds from the campaign go to 16 worthwhile community agencies, among them the Canadian Red Cross, Canadian National Institute for the Blind, Canadian Arthritis and Rheumatism Society, the Salvation Army, Boy Scouts, Boys' Club, Navy League, Big Brothers, Retarded Children, and Auxiliary to the David Lloyd-Jones Home.

Others include the Kelowna Homemakers, B.C. Borstal Association, Neurological Association, Health and Welfare, Multiple Sclerosis of Canada and Mental Health Association.

Youngster Improving

Scott Roche, an eight-year-old Kelowna boy shot last Wednesday at a New Year's gathering in a Langley home, is "improving quite well" in Langley Memorial Hospital today.

A hospital spokesman said the youth, suffering from a .303 rifle bullet wound in the abdomen, was sitting up in bed and watching television today. Doctors were earlier unable to remove particles of the bullet, fired at close range, from the boy's stomach.

The shooting occurred at the Langley home of John Stebbings where 23 relatives were gathered for a New Year's party. Two other people were slightly injured by a shot fired.

John Stebbings, 30, is facing a charge of criminal negligence in connection with the shooting and is free on $5,000 property bail. He will appear on the charge in Langley magistrate's court Jan. 16.

HOT MOTOR

One over-heated furnace motor Sunday provided the only work for the Kelowna Fire Brigade during the weekend. The motor was cooled down at 452 Burtch Ave. during the mid-afternoon. A small number of routine ambulance calls were also made by the brigade.

TWO NIGHTS

Because of the length of the Thursday film of the Kelowna Film Society, the film will be featured on two individual days.

The film, La Terra Tremi, will be shown on Wednesday and Thursday of this week, rather than having two showings the same night.

LEGION HALL

Officers of the Kelowna branch 26 of the Royal Canadian Legion will be installed at 8 p.m. Jan. 28 in the Legion Hall, 1663 Ellis St.

Pat Simpson, Northern Okanagan zone commander will be the installing officer.

Officers to be installed and who were elected to the executive for two year terms are: R. L. Blair, R. A. Brummitt, P. J. Evans, Lloyd Jessop and Peter Reiger. Others elected to one year terms are: A. G. Cherrill and G. A. Downey.

Early in December M. M. Jessop was named president of the branch.

Should Canadians Have A Uniform History?

When it dealt with the teaching of history in Canada, the Royal Commission on Bilingualism and Biculturalism was touching on a much more delicate subject than the teaching of the two official languages, the Montreal Star says. Learning a language, though there may be any number of methods of doing it, is a fairly clear-cut kind of experience, involving well-defined skills. History is much more complex, addressing itself as it does to the age-old question summed up by Gauguin: "D'où venons-nous? Que sommes-nous? Ou allons-nous?"

Even in its most scholarly forms, history is shaped and tainted by the historian's background and convictions, not to mention the technical difficulties of retracing past events. How much more allowance must one make for emotions and convictions when one deals with history at the primary and secondary school levels, where history is not only a subject of study, but also an instrument of integration of the young into their own society?

A first reading of the B and B report may leave us with a feeling of dismay over the contradictions between English and French Canadian history textbooks. The contrast between the French textbook referring to the battle of the Plains of Abraham as "une véritable catastrophe" while an English textbook author, in the words of the commission, writes of the conquest "with an almost audible sigh of relief," is one example of such contradictions. But on second thought, what can one expect? That French Canadians will be happy with an event which made them into a permanent minority? Or that the English will be sad?

More important than the discrepancies pointed out by the commissioners, is their evaluation of them:

"We want to make clear from the beginning our belief that such disagreement and debate are both natural and salutary. The fact that two versions of Canadian history exist is merely evidence of the fact that two societies exist in Canada. It is certainly not our intention to suggest an authorized version of Canadian duality."

The commission does not propose to create an artificial unanimity—an "authorized version" of history—that would level differences. Such an attempt could only result in impoverishing each community. In effect, to deplore the existence of divergent interpretations of Canadian history is to oppose the dual character of Canada itself.

Not that present history textbooks cannot be improved. The commission points out in which way this may be done: the children of each of the "two majorities" must at least be made aware of the events that were important for the other community, and why they were important. Thus, while continuing to preserve the cultural heritage of each group, history will also open minds to the existence and legitimacy of the two founding groups.

We must strive not so much to put an end to conflicting interpretations, as to correct sins of omission. Henri Bourassa may still be a greater hero for young French Canadians than George Brown will ever be, but at least young French Canadians will know who George Brown was, and maybe English Canadians will learn something too.

SPANISH VISIT

A few days ago on this page we carried a series of three articles on impressions of Spain. At that time photographs were not available, but some are now, and we plan to carry a few on successive days on subjects which may interest our readers.

Above is the beach at Torremolinos, near Malaga. Spain is noted for its beautiful and warm beaches.

Quirk In California Law Could Save Sirhan's Life

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Sirhan Bishara Sirhan goes to trial Tuesday Jan. 7, on a charge of murdering Senator Robert F. Kennedy—and a quirk in California law could save him from the gas chamber if he is found guilty.

The quirk is a hair-splitting technicality, reinforced by several decisions since 1949 but little known outside California, which recognizes a person may be legally sane yet still not fully responsible for his actions.

A number of legal and psychiatric authorities believe the 24-year-old Jordanian's lawyers may use a defence known as "diminished responsibility."

It seeks a verdict short of first-degree murder and a lesser penalty than death.

Presentation of evidence by both sides is expected to take two months or longer. There are indications that more than 200 witnesses will be called.

75 WILL WATCH

Some are expected to say that Sirhan waited in a kitchen area of the Ambassador Hotel early last June 5 as Kennedy entered.

That is the true sketch of human achievement—man is simultaneously a quarter of a million miles in space and a quarter of a million years in the past. On that kind of scale the concerns of the young revolutionaries are a petty conceit. There is a much bigger world than the microcosm to which they apply themselves—it is a pity they cannot see it.

Emile Zola Berman, 65, of New York City.

The likelihood that Sirhan's attorneys may use the "diminished responsibility" defence arises from the fact that the position has several times won a reduced sentence or even acquittal. In most states, a defendant must be found either sane or insane; in California, he can be held partially insane.

Interviews with lawyers and psychiatrists show these avenues are open for Sirhan:

1. The defence may offer evidence that the act was not premeditated, which would make it second-degree murder punishable by five years to life in prison.

2. The defence may try to prove that Sirhan's mental capacity was diminished to a point where he was not capable of malice. This would be manslaughter, punishable by up to 15 years in prison.

DIMINISHED MALICE?

Diminished responsibility has been claimed in several cases when the defence could not establish legal insanity but could show the person was influenced by fear, rage, obsession, drugs or even alcohol.

Sirhan pleaded not guilty last Aug. 2.

Legal authorities say that plea did not necessarily mean Sirhan was denying he killed Kennedy. Since he is charged with murder with malice aforethought, the not guilty plea could have meant simply that he was denying malice.

At a news conference following the plea, Parsons said the not guilty plea "permits us to show the what and why—what are the real issues—if he is the man, why did he do it?"

Parsons himself thus seemed to set the stage for a diminished-capacity defence—which need not be declared prior to the trial.

Sirhan did not enter a separate plea of not guilty by reason of insanity, although this is permissible under California law.

Sirhan's lawyers have told reporters he has never entered only a single plea of not guilty when psychiatrists have found a client legally insane.

STARTED IN 1949

The concept of diminished responsibility has been developing in California law since 1949, when the state Supreme Court ruled a trial judge erred in barring psychiatric testimony even though the defendant did not plead insanity.

Since then, testimony by psychiatrists has been a major factor in reducing the verdict in several cases.

Aside from the possibilities offered by the concept of diminished capacity, there is another reason some authorities believe Sirhan never will be executed.

If a man is unbalanced enough to kill in full view of a crowd, they say, the stress of confinement and trial might push him over the vague border between sanity and insanity.

Parsons apparently was referring to this last August when he told reporters: "Sudden things might develop—people sometimes lose their minds very suddenly."

If this should happen, Sirhan could spend the rest of his days in a mental institution regardless of the verdict.

One lawyer not connected with the Sirhan case says:

"It looks like a hard one to defend, but it's actually a defence lawyer's dream. Defence counsel can't lose stature—anything short of the gas chamber is a victory."

A Legal Link With Spies

TORONTO (CP) — Lawyers have little in common with spies, but soon they may depend on microfilming to make their jobs easier, just as secret agents do in the movies.

Microfilm may be on the threshold of working radical reforms in the practice of law in Canada, and the benefit could be an elusive, long-sought-after prize: swifter and cheaper justice.

The weeks and months lawyers spend rooting around in tons of lawbooks to prepare complicated cases could be slashed to a fraction of that time. So could the weeks and months judges spend trying to arrive at a decision by sifting out what the lawyers have dredged up from hundreds of years of legal history.

What could bring all this about are amazing new microfilm systems for storing and retrieving information.

These systems are actually in use now at insurance companies and other businesses where records never seem to get old enough to throw away.

Yards and yards of microfilm can be stored in small cans that can be instantly located by means of a computer. By means of closed-circuit television and telecommunications equipment the information can be flashed to any point in the country instantly.

Manufacturers say that a $10,000 microfilm storage and retrieval system can handle the contents of 200,000 books and, on push-button command, put a page from any one of them on a screen in 15 seconds.

Ossosede Hall, the seat of Ontario's legal profession, only has 120,000 books in its libraries and storage rooms.

"At first glance it looks as though in some aspects of the law business we could be at least twice as efficient as we are," one lawyer commented about the microfilming technique.

It's also cheaper than books, say manufacturers: A $10 book can be produced on microfilm for less than $1.

Save a manufacturer "We can put 100,000 words of law in a shoe box."

There's Tragedy In Retaliation

By PHILIP DEANE
Foreign Affairs Analyst

The tragedy of the Israeli retaliation, from an Israeli point of view, is that it is no solution to anything. Israeli retaliation has, to some extent in the past, worked as a restraint on some Arab governments; but Israel's enemy now is a guerrilla movement, not controlled by any one Arab government.

By striking at Lebanon, the most reasonable and least bellicose Arab nation, Israel underscored the dilemma: the Lebanese government is least bellicose because it is not a government of strongman extremists. Syria, on the other hand, run by nationalistic colonels, is much less reasonable. The sort of government Lebanon has, does not want trouble with Israel; but this same government does not want to stir up trouble for itself by trying to suppress "terrorist" organizations.

These organizations are terrorists in the eyes of Israel and in the columns of journalists who have more sympathy for western Israel than for eastern Arabs. But in the eyes of the Arab public, especially the young, the Arab saboteurs and commandos are heroes, Robin Hoods, freedom fighters. They have now become an international group with independent sources of money and supply; they do not receive their money and arms from the Arab government on whose soil they operate, as they received their funds and orders from Nasser before the 1956 war.

For an Arab government, especially a mild one, like Lebanon's to cross the freedom fighter terrorist is to risk serious internal disorders. Internal and external enemies of the government would cry "treason" and the least to be expected would be a wave of strikes and student riots.

The characteristic philosophy of men who engage in sabotage is that the end justifies the means: they believe, like young student activists, that destruction must precede reform. They do not care that in retaliation for their actions, Lebanese civil aviation will suffer a crippling blow; on the contrary, the Arab militants believe this sort of thing is all to the good. They have scored a success, they would say, by demonstrating the true nature of Israel and by increasing the indignation of the Arab world against Israel, by making more Arab militant.

This is one of those desperate situations in which it is very difficult to give realistic advice. Israel is a besieged, warrior nation, set up by Jews fed up with centuries of being pushed around. To survive, Israel has had to be militant as well as military. It has cultivated the warrior spirit and militarily it has paid off—there is no better armed force, man for man, anywhere in the world. How can one ask such warriors to take sabotage lying down? If one tells them retaliation leads nowhere they will ask what else is there.

How To Prepare For Heart Attack

By DR. GEORGE THOSTESON

Dear Dr. Thosteson:

My query is heart, having been caught twice without quick medical aid when my wife had a coronary attack. What do you do in such an emergency until help can be obtained—H.E.M.

Generally speaking, it is more important to know what not to do than what to do. There is little you can do except keep the patient quiet and lying down.

Let me distinguish here between a "coronary thrombosis," which so often comes with little or no immediate warning, and an attack of angina pectoris, or chest pain.

Patients who are subject to recurrent and severe attacks of angina pectoris (not a "heart attack" in the sense of a coronary thrombosis) should have narcotic medication on hand, in case of an attack. This is available in tablet form and can be given by mouth to ease the pain until medical attention is available.

Or, in the more usual attacks of angina, a nitroglycerin tablet under the tongue will usually afford sufficient relief.

A coronary thrombosis, or heart attack in which the blood supply to part of the heart muscle is suddenly interrupted by a clot or embolism, is another and more acutely dangerous matter.

The patient is in severe pain and suffering also from the anxiety naturally associated with a heart attack. Ordinary sedatives, tranquilizers, and alcohol are not sufficient to begin to cope with the patient's distress, and it is worse than useless to try to force them on the patient.

Rather, get the patient lying down and as comfortable as possible.

sible. Loosen tight collars to ease breathing. Keep the patient quiet. Assure him that you will help him as soon as possible. If he is cold, cover him with a blanket. But that's all you can reasonably attempt.

It is usually best to call a doctor to the patient rather than trying to move the patient to a hospital yourself. First, the doctor can quickly ease the pain and along with it much of the patient's anxiety.

He can also better judge what special precautions, if any, are necessary for moving the patient.

The essential fact is that you can't do very much yourself. Do what little I have indicated, and be satisfied with that. Trying to do anything further is more likely to harm than to help the patient.

Yes, I realize that is a frightening time for you as well as the patient, but while fussing over the patient or trying to think of something else to do for him may give you something to do, it won't help him.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am 13 and wanted to try tampons but have heard all these stories, mostly from older women, that they were very dangerous, could stop the flow, or interfere with birth when you get older. It just doesn't make sense that 30 million women use them but I've never heard anything medically about the danger—K.C.

There is no truth in the stories you have heard. The only explanation I can see for these rumors is that tampons were not in use when some of these older women were young. You can be certain that the information would be made public if tampons caused any such consequences.

CANADA'S STORY

Anne Marie Gaboury Had Great Adventure

By BOB BOWMAN

Louis Riel, who was hanged at Regina for treason in 1885, is now such an honored figure in Canadian history that it is difficult to realize how much he was hated by some people. Most of the pressure to have Riel executed came from Ontario because he had ordered the shooting of an Orangeman, Thomas Scott, at Red River in 1870. When Riel surrendered to General Middleton after the rebellion of 1885, the Toronto "News" said: "Strange Riel with the French flag." That is the only way that man can have in this country.

Riel came from great stock. His father, whose name was also Louis Riel, broke the Hudson's Bay Company monopoly at Red River in 1849. He was known as "the miller of the Seine" because he operated a mill on the Seine River and built a 12-mile canal to make it possible.

Louis Riel's grandfather was one of the most courageous and colorful men in Canadian history. Anne Marie Gaboury was brought up in a small village near Trois Rivières, Que., and somehow met the great buffalo hunter Jean Baptiste Lagimodiere who had made the trip east to sell furs. They fell in love and Anne Marie insisted on going back to the prairies with Lagimodiere although there were no white women there. He paddled her down the St. Lawrence, through the Great Lakes, and then they paddled and portaged through the rough country to the Pembina area where they settled for a time.

All but one of the Indian women treated Anne Marie like a goddess, not having seen a white woman before. The exception offered to act as the Lagimodieres' cook, but Jean Baptiste cancelled the arrangement when he learned that she planned to poison them. She had been one of his first friends. The Lagimodieres' first child, Rene, was born at Pembina on Jan. 6, 1807. The first white child born in the west. They travelled all over the prairies and lived in Alberta for some time. When they had five children, Jean Baptiste moved the family to Red River and one of his daughters, Julie, became the mother of Louis Riel.

The story of Anne Marie Gaboury is well worth reading.

OTHER EVENTS ON JAN. 6:
1789—Lord Dorchester (Governor of Canada) established the first agricultural society at Quebec.
1832—W. L. Mackenzie was expelled from Upper Canada's legislature when he was expelled five times during his career.
1877—McLean's Flour Mill, the first in Manitoba, began operations.
1915—Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry went into action in France.

Only Squares In Orbit

(Vancouver Province)

The great space adventure around the moon should help to illuminate some of the things that have been happening here on earth during the past few months.

It is strange, for instance, that the thousands of young people so anxious to revolutionize the world are far removed from participation in the most revolutionary exercise since Columbus indicated the world isn't flat.

The youngsters who proclaim that anyone over 30 isn't to be trusted must be disconcerted that two of the Apollo 8 spacemen are 40 and the third is five years past the accepted milepost arbitrarily set by the young crowd.

While the most swinging thing of the century was taking place the young revolutionaries were on the sidelines. While university activists were getting ready for their 1969 "season" the real revolution in the space age was being carried out by men who graduated years ago.

And, strangely enough, the universities being reviled for stale orthodoxy and lack of enlightened teaching methods managed to produce the scientists who planned the rockets, the space capsules and the countless sophisticated mechanical systems that made the space epic possible. Not bad for a lot of old fogies bogged down in obsolete practices.

No doubt the youthful torchbearers of the new revolutions scorn such yardsticks as hopelessly "square." These young lions are dedicated to better things than materialism and technology. They want "reform," although nobody seems able clearly to define exactly what reform.

It is a measure of man's myopia that revolution is in the focus of today's thinking. The lunar orbits that have gripped the world's attention for these few days are also taking place above the heads of stone age natives in New Guinea who still don't know that space has three dimensions.

That is the true sketch of human achievement—man is simultaneously a quarter of a million miles in space and a quarter of a million years in the past. On that kind of scale the concerns of the young revolutionaries are a petty conceit. There is a much bigger world than the microcosm to which they apply themselves—it is a pity they cannot see it.

Nieces and nephews in Minneapolis, Minn., added their congratulations by long-distance telephone call.

The guest of honor was also the recipient of many lovely floral arrangements and attending relatives presented her with a corsage of pink carnations accompanied with a cheque.

During the lighting of candles on a large decorated cake, everyone joined in the singing of Happy Birthday.

After dinner all the children sang Christmas carols and played games. Following an evening of dancing, a midnight buffet supper was enjoyed and Mrs. Weisbeck extended her thanks to everyone for making the occasion such a memorable one.

Canadian Clothing Firms Campaign For Export Trade

OTTAWA (CP)—Seventeen Canadian clothing manufacturers take another step this week to get out of the business squal caused by low-priced garment imports when they show the latest in Canadian rainwear to U.S. buyers in New York.

The selling show at the McAlpin Hotel, the second such in four months, is part of a new-direction campaign by Canadian clothing makers to offset foreign competition on the home front with an export push of their own.

Latest figures from the Dominion Bureau of Statistics testify that the export-or-die policy is paying off.

In the first 10 months of last year, Canada's 2,333 apparel manufacturing establishments listed by DBS shipped items valued at $956,243,000, an increase of less than three per cent on the same 1967 period.

EXPORTS SOAR

Exports, however, expanded by about 50 per cent in the same time to almost $35,000,000, counting all categories in the DBS apparel listings including $12,547,000 worth of fur goods. A slightly different set of figures used by the department of industry, trade and commerce shows similar growth in exports.

Canadian sales abroad have a long way to go to match clothing imports valued at almost $120,000,000 in the first 10 months of 1968.

It is the quality of the progress that counts for Canadian business, says a government trade official.

The trend among Canadian garment manufacturers in general, and within some individual firms, is to concentrate on items they can export, primarily to the United States, and drop out of the struggle to compete with low-priced articles from Japan, Hong Kong and points west.

STRESS DESIGN

In practical terms, that means emphasis on medium-quality clothing of good design, especially in exportable men's and women's overcoats, rainwear, outdoor jackets and men's suits.

It means backing away from manufacture of cheaper shirts, blouses, trousers and sleepwear in cotton or synthetics like those that pour in much more cheaply from Asia or Eastern Europe.

The result of the shift, a trade official says, is that Canada now has a clothing trade surplus with the United States and is roughly in balance with Western Europe.

Main thrust aims to capture a bigger share of the $20,000,000,000 U.S. clothing market. About 60 per cent of Canadian exports go to the United States and most of the recent growth in foreign sales is there.

U.S. MAIN BUYER

For example, the United States accounted for $5,461,000 worth of the total $5,845,000 in exported Canadian overcoats during the first 10 months of last year.

U.S. buyers—mainly big department stores and chains such as Saks, Sears, and Bloomingdale's—were the leading customers in virtually all categories of Canadian clothing exports but fur goods, where Switzerland and Britain were ahead.

The Canadian garment exporters are getting some help from the government in adjusting to the imports threat, notably on organized selling missions, such as the New York rainwear show, and with other financial assistance from the trade and commerce department.

The export outlook for Canadian garment makers is definitely "bullish," a trade official says.

"We should be in trade surplus in clothing with the developed countries in a few years."

ANN LANDERS

She Has Daydreams
About Drunken Heel

Dear Ann Landers: I've been married 12 years to a wonderful man and we have a beautiful family. I know I must be crazy or I wouldn't be writing to you. I am hoping you'll print my letter and the pure disgust of reading it in the paper will cure me once and for all.

These past few months I've been having these wild daydreams about a former love whom I have not seen in 10 years. He was a handsome heel, a heavy drinker, an inveterate liar, and I have congratulated myself a dozen times for having had the good sense not to marry him.

These ridiculous daydreams started to haunt me about three months ago when I heard "our song" on the radio. I began to relive the glorious moments we shared. All those dead passions, long forgotten, began to stir anew. Now I can't get the rotter of my mind.

Please tell me how to rid myself of this ghost from the past? —NUTTY JOYCE

Dear Nutty: When you feel a daydream coming on, substitute in its place a real life episode, — one of those beauts that made you decide not to marry the louse.

Remember that a mental rerun of a romantic fantasy can be twice as good as the real thing. And keep this column handy as a reminder that your sane self wrote for help.

Dear Ann Landers: The other evening three couples (including my husband and me) were leaving a restaurant. One of the men was carrying a bulky two-foot bag. He seemed to be having a difficult time getting his arm through the sleeve of his coat. I was standing beside him and the sensible thing to do, I thought, was to help him. So I did.

The man's wife gave me a dirty look. I felt my face get red. Later that evening I asked my husband (in private, of course) if I had done the wrong thing. He said, "Yes, a woman should never help a man with his coat unless she is a servant."

I am still unconvinced. Is he right? — VA. FROM PA.

Dear VA.: Manners are nothing more than common sense and consideration for others. You used common sense when you helped your friend with his coat, and in my book, your manners are fine.

Dear Ann Landers: As a registered nurse, may I add a word of reassurance to the bride-to-be who was afraid to have surgery because she was fearful of revealing an old secret while under the anesthetic?

I have been an R.N. on the surgical ward for almost 20 years. Often the first question asked by a patient (invariably a woman) when she wakes from the anesthetic is, "What did I say?"

I always tell her, "Nothing—nothing at all." And this is the truth. I have yet to hear a patient—male or female—reveal any secrets while coming out of an anesthetic. Most of their words are slurred and unintelligible.

So please, Ann, inform your readers that if they need surgery and are holding off because of this fear, they are very foolish.—PETER BENT BRIGHAM HOSPITAL, BOSTON

Dear R.N.: Thanks for your letter of reassurance from a professional who is in a position to know. It was good of you to write.

Confidentially to Sally In The Alley: Never mind about what's wrong with your mother. What's wrong with your house that you can't invite a boy in? A car is for transportation, not a place to entertain company. And in the kitchen, if you rattled the wrong cage, troit Red Wings engineered a six-player trade. One of the key figures in that trade was Norm Ullman, a veteran centre who had starred with Detroit for several seasons. Ullman is showing he has lost none of his talent since the trade as he is leading Toronto back on the path to a playoff spot. He scored three goals Saturday as the Leafs beat New York Rangers 5-3 and assisted on another goal Sunday as the Leafs tied the Philadelphia Flyers 2-2.

Ullman has been in the top 10 NHL scorers consistently for the past month because of plays like the one above where he beats Ranger goaltender Ed Giacomin.

Canadiens Bounce Back To Defeat Black Hawks

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Pride and a couple of quick goals by centre Jacques Lemaire helped Montreal Canadiens return to first place in the Eastern Division of the National Hockey League Sunday night.

Lemaire scored twice within 78 seconds to help the Canadiens defeat Chicago Black Hawks 4-2 and move one point ahead of the runner-up Boston Bruins.

The victory came a day after the Black Hawks had trounced the Canadiens 6-3 at Montreal, and in front of a national television audience in the United States.

Lossing at home and in front of such an immense audience must have stirred up the Canadiens, the defending Stanley Cup champions and a team with a proud history.

Ted Harris scored Montreal's first goal in front of 16,666 Chicago fans Sunday night at 3:28 of the opening period. Then Lemaire, a 22-goal scorer in his rookie season last year, went to work.

He scored his 14th goal of the season at 9:20 with both teams playing a man short and added his 15th at 10:38 on a pass from Mickey Redmond.

In other games Sunday, Detroit Red Wings shaded Pittsburgh Penguins 2-1, New York Rangers walloped Minnesota North Stars 5-1, Philadelphia Flyers and Toronto Maple Leafs fought to a 2-2 stalemate and Los Angeles Kings and Oakland Seals played a scoreless tie.

Saturday night, Toronto crushed New York 5-3, Boston and Minnesota played to a 2-2 tie, St. Louis Blues upset Detroit 3-1 and Philadelphia and Pittsburgh skated to a 1-1 tie.

Dick Duff scored the other Montreal goal Sunday night while Stan Mikita and Eric Nesenko connected for the Black Hawks, who have only two losses in their last 11 games.

Harris of Montreal and Bill Orban of Chicago received a minor and major each for a high-sticking duel and slugging match early in the first period.

Rod Gilbert and Ron Stewart scored two goals each to help the Rangers down Minnesota Sunday. Reg Fleming collected the other New York goal and Milan Marcetta tallied for Minnesota.

A crowd of 17,250 at New York was on hand for the five Ranger goals, the most in one game for the team since a 7-3 victory against Pittsburgh last Oct. 30.

The win left the Rangers two points behind Toronto and Chicago, which are tied for third in the Eastern Division.

HOWE SCORES 18TH

Gordie Howe scored his 18th goal of the season early in the final period to give Detroit its triumph Sunday night before 10,973 fans at Detroit.

It was the 11th winning goal in Howe's 23-season NHL career and came when he took a pass from left winger Frank Mahovlich and fired a low wrist shot past Pittsburgh goalie Les Binkley.

Bruce MacGregor scored the other Detroit goal with his team playing a man short and Bob Woytowich tallied for the Penguins.

A gathering of 11,274 at Philadelphia saw Guy Gendron and Andre Lacroix score Flver goals Sunday night. Paul Henderson and Bill Sutherland were credited with the Toronto goals.

Philadelphia took a 2-0 lead early in the second period, but Toronto fought back and earned the tie on Henderson's goal at 15:28 of the second period.

Forbes Kennedy of Philadelphia was given a major penalty for high-sticking and drawing blood at 15:14 of the final period, and the Maple Leafs had a man advantage from that point until the end of the game. Flver goalie Bernie Parent made spectacular saves on Henderson and Norm Ullman to preserve the tie.

Gary Smith of Oakland and Gerry Gardina of Los Angeles both earned their third shutouts of the season before a crowd of 3,005 at Oakland Sunday night.

The tie left Oakland in second place in the Western Division, 12 points behind first-place St. Louis and two ahead of third-place Los Angeles.

Victory Meant Little To Dallas Cowboys

MIAMI (AP) — Dallas Cowboys beat Minnesota Vikings 17-13 Sunday in what could be the last National Football League playoff bowl game as it is now constituted—at least in Miami.

The contract between the NFL and the Orange Bowl ended with Sunday's dull game before a 22,961 rain-drenched fans. Bowl officials apparently feel the game between second place finishers in the NFL's two conferences lacks interest for fans and players. They are believed to be proposing they be permitted a choice of teams from the NFL and the American Football League, exclusive of the Super Bowl participants.

The NFL has two more years on a television contract for the game, and could decide to continue it at another site—New Orleans is believed interested—rather than change the format. The game has produced more than $1,000,000 in nine years for the players' pension fund.

As presently constituted, the game has nothing at stake, except the $1,200 share per player on the winning team and $500 for losing players. Dallas coach Tom Landry said last week that this is a fun-weekend and teams don't give the game the 24-hour concentration needed for a top performance.

Landry said after Sunday's game that the victory meant little, but his players were determined to show they could bounce back.

Vancouver Canucks shot into sole possession of first place in the Western Hockey League Saturday night by bombing Denver Spurs 8-4 in a free-scoring contest before 8,879 fans in Vancouver Saturday night.

Due to the cold weather and heating problem, the Kelowna Judo Club will not begin classes on Tuesday, as announced at the last practice. Future practices will be announced later.

With playing-coach Al Rollins minding net, Spokane Jets beat the University of Alberta 1-0 in an exhibition hockey match in Spokane Sunday.

Penticton Broncos exploded for six goals in the third period Saturday night to defeat University of British Columbia Thunderbirds 7-5 in an exhibition hockey game before 1,000 fans in Penticton.

Ed Hays paced the British Columbia Junior Hockey League club with two goals while Vic Mercederi, Reg Cherenko, Robin Agur, Ken Conner and Pat Laughton added the others.

Wayne Schaub, a former Bronco player, Doug Buchanan, Stu Gibbs, Dwayne Blagdon and Miles Desharnais replied for the Thunderbirds who were outshot 43-24.

Bucks Drop Two Games In Weekend Coast Play

Kelowna Buckaroos remained firmly entrenched in fourth place during the weekend as they dropped two B.C. Junior Hockey League games at the coast.

The Buckaroos put on strong performance Saturday, but still lost 5-3 to the Cougars in Victoria, then allowed New Westminster Royals their biggest output of the season Sunday, losing 9-3.

The two losses give Kelowna 25 points, six less than the second-place Vernon Essos and Penticton Broncos. Six points behind the Buckaroos come the Kamloops Rockets.

The Bucks have three games in hand over Vernon and one game in hand over Kamloops.

Pat McMahon scored two goals and Dave Angus one in Saturday's loss in Victoria. Grant Evans scored twice for Victoria, singles going to John Van Horlick, Bruce Cowick and Doug Gibson.

Sunday was complete disaster for Kelowna as they trailed the Royals from the outset. New Westminster led 4-1 after the first period and 7-3 at the end of the second.

Ken Love paced the Royals attack with three goals in what his father, coach of the last-place club, called the best performance by the Royals this season. Mickey Wilson added a pair for New Westminster with singles going to Bruce McGill, John Campbell, Peter Kozak and Al Knight.

Larry Lenarduzzi, Chuck Cari-gan and Pat McMahon scored for the Buckaroos as the Royals outshot the visitors 42-29. Another small crowd, only 225 paid, watched the game.

The win pulled New Westminster to within one point of fifth place in the standings. The Royals have not escaped the league cellar since the opening days of the season.

The weekend losses extended Kelowna's losing streak to three games and left them with only one win in their last five outings. They defeated Vernon Essos in Vernon Dec. 28 for their last win.

Next weekend, the Buckaroos host Vernon Friday and travel to Kamloops for a game against the Rockets Saturday.

Cougars Hold Three-Point Lead Atop Junior League Standings

Four hard-fought weekend are tied for second place. The battling, Essos, visited Kamloops Saturday night and defeated the hometown Rockets 5-3. New Westminster beat Kelowna 9-3 Saturday.

In a Sunday game the Essos and Broncos remained scoreless during the first period with Jack Marsh opening up for Vernon with two goals in the second period.

Within 13 minutes, Wayne Dye, Bob Blanchette and Jim Inglis had extended Vernon's lead to 5-0.

Then the Broncos came alive, scoring one goal in the last minutes of the second period and four more in the final frame to earn a tie.

Bronco scorers were Pat Laughton with a pair and Reg Cherenko, Ed Hays and Norm Jackson.

Penticton outshot Vernon 41-31. In a Saturday game, Vernon's Wayne Dye scored the only first-period goal, but the impetus carried over into the second period, with Dye banging in another one, followed by Jack Marsh and Bob Mayer.

Kamloops' only second-period tally came from Rick Beauchamp although the Rockets came back in the third with goals from Gordon Redding and Larry Morrey.

Late in the period, Dye shot back with the clincher in a game that saw Al Alexander kick out 32 shots for the Essos and John Bado stop 39 shots for the Rockets.

Real Battle In Super Bowl Will Feature 'Faceless Men'

NEW YORK (AP) — Broadway Joe Namath and shop-worn Earl Morrall will steal the headlines in next Sunday's Super Bowl game but the real battle will be fought in the pit between the faceless men who man the trenches for New York Jets and Baltimore Colts.

Las Vegas oddsmakers have made the Colts, champions of the National Football League, 18½-point favorites over the American Football League winners. The spread is surprising because Green Bay Packers were only 14 points over Kansas City in 1968 and 15 over Oakland in 1968. However, the Packers whipped the Chiefs 35-10 and turned back the Raiders 33-14.

Namath's success in the third Super Bowl will depend on the ability of the Jets' offensive line to keep the Colts' strong rush off his back. The Jets were able to give Namath 6-foot-2 and 185 pounds, such fine protection during the regular season that he was dumped only 18 times in 14 games.

KEPT ON TOP

Coach Weeb Ewbank was re-vamping his offensive line up to the last minute before the Oakland game and wound up using a guard, Dave Herman, at right tackle in an attempt to control the line. The Raiders' left end, who demolished rookie Sam Walton in an earlier game.

It will be the job of Winston Hill, 6-6, 280-pound tackle to Keen Ordell Brase, 6-4, 245, a 12-year-veteran, from smearing Namath as he had toughted Cleveland's Bill Nielsen, last week. Bob Talamini, 6-4, 255 an AFL veteran, must take care of Fred Miller, 6-3, 250, regarded by many as the Colts' top defensive line man. Centre John Schmitt, 6-4, 245, will be occupied with either middle linebacker Denny Gaubatz, 6-2, 232, or a tackle.

TOUGH JOB AHEAD

On the other side of the line it will be Randy Rasmussen, 6-2, 255, a second-year pro who lost his starting job to Talamini before the switch, against Billy Ray Smith, 6-4, 250, a tackle who has been around 10 years. If Ewbank goes he will be blocking against Bubba Smith, 6-7, 295.

The Colts' linebacking crew of Mike Curtis, 6-2, 232, a mad dog on the left, side Gaubatz in the middle and Don Shinnick, 6-0, 228, on the right side, stunt with the front four and also help in pass protection. Namath can expect to see one of the linebackers in a blitz every now and then.

Vatican Critics Grow Louder

MADRID (AP) — Spanish bishops of the Roman Catholic Church, unused to family rebellion, hear these days a swelling chorus of criticism by young priests concerned over the future of the church and its members.

One priest put part of the situation thus: "There's a third world in Spain, now. The younger people who have received church influence from their mothers and anti-church sentiments from their fathers. They are torn between two influences and they don't know where they're heading."

Another young cleric said Pope Paul is a captive of Vatican conservatives, but added: "Compared with the Spanish church those conservatives are liberals."

Msgr. Casimiro Morcillo, archbishop of Madrid, said: "There are small groups of faithful Christians who with little or no humility consider themselves dissociated from all the apostles and the successor of Peter himself."

Ferment within the church and outside of it has been noteworthy in recent months and it seems to mount almost daily.

The late bishop of San Sebastian, Msgr. Lorenzo Bereciartua, accused the government of violating the concordat between Spain and the Vatican by arresting Basque priests and searching church buildings in north Spain.

DENIES ACCUSATION

The government denied the accusation but renegotiation of the concordat, which younger priests see as a chance to dissociate the church from the government of Gen. Francisco Franco has been speeded.

Recently 630 Spanish priests made public a letter asking the bishops to give up government subsidies, specifically priests' salaries.

The priests said that acceptance of state salaries made them seem like state officials, that in the eyes of the faithful they didn't appear in an adequate condition of independence and disinterest.

While this falls far short of a separation of church and state, there are many who see it as the entering wedge.

Several scores of priests in the Basque area of Bilbao defied their late bishop, Msgr. Pablo Gurpide, when he ordered them to preach according to his political line in Sunday sermons.

The concordat lays down the rules between state and church. In return for control of the naming of Spanish bishops, an important political asset for Franco, the Spanish government subsidizes the church with buildings, salaries, tax benefits. It frees clerics from civil courts and guarantees the sanctity of church buildings.

Many in the church would like to take back the right given Franco to select Spanish bishops, some of whom are accused of dragging their feet on more liberal reforms of the Vatican.

ROME (AP) — Opera fans from this land where the lyric theatre was born, Italy's famed bel canto has given way to the pop song.

The change has come despite desperate efforts of the country's great old conservatories of music and the massive subsidy of $20,800,000 a year paid by the Italian government to the country's opera houses.

Italy's 17 opera theatres still are full or nearly full during the opera season but often half the tickets are free handouts to keep up appearances.

The old opera classics have failed to attract a new generation, and there have been few new operas of any note.

Perhaps the last of the famed composers was Pietro Mascagni who died in 1945, and he was known only for one outstanding work, Cavalleria Rusticana.

The only other classic of this century were the last work of Giacomo Puccini, who died in 1924. He gave the 20th century his Turandot and The Girl of the Golden West which had its debut in 1911 at the Metropolitan in New York with Caruso as tenor and Arturo Toscanini as conductor.

ALL COULD SING

Those were the days when almost any Italian could sing from memory his favorite arias from the great operas.

The average Italian still sings, but it is the pop music of television shows and the disc and tape recordings.

The names of pop stars Caterina Caselli, Milva, Mina, Rita Pavone, Gianni Morandi and Adriano Celentano are as well known in Italy today as the names of Enrico Caruso and Beniamino Gigli used to be in the heyday of opera.

BOGOTA, Colombia (AP) — "Mr. President, we trust you."

The placard, waved by a smiling peasant girl, caught the eye of President Carlos Lleras as he climbed a muddy hill in an isolated province where he had gone in his campaign to keep in touch with the people.

The "weekend Carlos Lleras-style" has become a household word in Colombia. Thousands of bureaucrats in different parts of the country have learned to fear it. Many Colombians see it as a hope that the usually lofty government will get acquainted with their problems.

Monday's child is fair of face, Tuesday's child is full of grace; Wednesday's child is full of wit; Thursday's child is full of joy; Friday's child is loving and giving; Saturday's child works hard for a living; And the child that is born on the Sabbath Day, Is fair and wise, and good, and gay.

Children hearing this verse by Counter Cullen always want to know which day of the week was their birth date. A Kelowna Daily Courier Birth Notice will provide a record in print for your child. A Kelowna Daily Courier Birth Notice is only $2.00. To place a Birth Notice, dial 762-4445.

'Champagne' Ban Lifted

MONTREAL (CP) — An injunction forbidding Chateau-Gai Wines Ltd. to use the word "champagne" on the labels of some of its products has been suspended by the Quebec Court of Appeal.

The injunction was issued Dec. 23 by Mr. Justice Claude Prevoist of Quebec Superior Court. The judge also ordered the Niagara Falls, Ont., wine maker to pay $75,000 to 15 French shippers of champagne.

Chateau-Gai filed an appeal Dec. 27.

The provisional suspension of the injunction was granted by Chief Justice Lucien Tremblay and Mr. Justice Roger Brossard of the Court of Appeal.

In his notes on the decision, Chief Justice Tremblay said that for "very many years" Chateau-Gai, T. G. Bright and Co. Ltd. and Jordan Wines Ltd. had been distributing in Quebec "certain wines which they designated under the 'champagne' designation."

that the appeal raises serious questions.

In his decision last month, Mr. Justice Prevoist ruled that Chateau-Gai had violated a 1933 treaty between Canada and France stipulating that the word champagne must be used only as a "term of origin" to denote wine made from specific grapes grown in clearly defined areas of France.

It is not yet known when the appeal will be heard.

SAIGON (AP) — The year 1968 ended with the lowest weekly American death toll since the bombing of North Vietnam ended, the U.S. command reported today. But the number of South Vietnamese dead was the highest in three months, indicating an increasing part in the war by Saigon government's troops.

The reported toll of North Vietnamese and Viet Cong dead was claimed at five times the U.S. and South Vietnamese total.

Communiques today reflected the recent changed nature of the war — small, widely scattered ground actions, the uncovering of more Viet Cong supply dumps, and the shelling of U.S. posts coupled with hit-and-run attacks.

The death of 113 American servicemen Christmas week was the lowest in 10 weeks. South Vietnamese losses in the same week were 279 dead, the highest in 13 weeks, while 2,135 Viet Cong and North Vietnamese were reported killed.

GETS TO VOTE

KEREMEOS, B.C. (CP) — Chalk up another victory for women, Mrs. Bill Smith, 62, complained that her paraplegic husband couldn't enter the polling station here to vote in a municipal election. A wire from Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell informed her that a returning officer can take a ballot box to persons too elderly or infirmed to get into the polling station.

Jackie Visits Seaside Resort

ATHENS (AP) — Aristotle and Jacqueline Onassis are visiting the nearby seaside resort of Glyphada with Onassis' sister. The couple arrived last week from their private Ionian island aboard their 325-foot yacht Christina. Mrs. Onassis' children, Caroline, 10, and John Jr., 7, went for a sightseeing tour of the city.

Chief Justice Tremblay said that to avoid prejudicing the issue raised by the action he would confine himself to observing that "the appeal raises serious questions."

What's the use of advertising?

well, it's helping Jackie to walk again

Jackie will walk again because of the generosity of many people he's never met — people who have never met him. Yet these people knew of and answered the need for funds to teach Jackie and children like him to walk again. They knew because of advertising.

Advertising has so many faces, so many uses. There's the commercial face of advertising, that sells products, thus promoting economic growth, producing jobs, and raising the standard of living.

Then there's the humanitarian face of advertising. This advertising raises funds for medical aid and research. Teaches traffic safety. Finds homes for orphaned children. Fills blood banks. Does hundreds of widely diversified jobs that benefit all of society. This advertising can put a smile back in a child's eyes... can save a life... can comfort a lonely man.

Social service agencies, religious organizations, medical centres, all know of what great use advertising is. Because without advertising, these institutions would find it very difficult to function. To carry out their work, to benefit all of us, they need public support. And they get that support through advertising.

Think about it next time you pick up your daily newspaper. Think about the many faces of advertising. And if you ever wonder what the use of advertising is, think of Jackie. Advertising is helping him to walk again.

Another Bentley To Face Goalies

EDMONTON (CP) — The frame is a shade bigger and the hair is several shades lighter.

But the hawk-nosed profile and flashes of the dippy-doodling style identify the rookie left winger as Doug Bentley Jr., bearer of a name remembered without affection by a generation of National Hockey League goaltenders.

At 17, young Doug has made few inroads on the sleep of netminders in the Western Canada Hockey League since he joined Edmonton Oil Kings. But he has his eye on an NHL career and Oil King officials think he may make it.

"He has all the desire to make the NHL," says Doug Sr., an Oil King adviser who has coached 228 goals in league and playoff action, mostly with Chicago Black Hawks, in his 13-year career.

"But he's still thinking of his education first."

The elder Bentley, with his brother Max and Bill Mosienko, constituted the Pony Line which brightened a lean period for Chicago Black Hawks in the 1940s, electrifying the fans with their speed, stick-handling and scoring ability.

WAS WITH RANGERS

The line was broken up when Max was traded to Toronto but the brothers were reunited briefly 11 years ago as Doug came out of retirement to spend three months with New York Rangers.

The Bentleys hail from Dells, Sask., 30 miles southwest of Saskatoon, but now are based in Alberta, where Max coaches Ponoka Stampede of the Alberta Junior League.

Bill Hunter, veteran coach of the Oil Kings, says Doug Jr. has the "Bentley hockey instinct" and needs only experience and improvement in his skating to become a star in the WCHL.

Under the independent league's scholarship program, which permits him to stay with the Oil Kings until he is 22, Doug has time to make up for the years of minor hockey he missed while his father filled a number of coaching assignments in the United States.

He played pee wee and bantam hockey in Dells before moving to a bantam league in Long Beach, Calif., and a high school junior team in Knoxville, Tenn.

HEAVIER THAN DAD

Last season, when Doug Sr. coached Edmonton Monarchs of the defunct Western Canada Senior League, he returned to Canadian organized hockey with an Edmonton juvenile club.

At 5-10 and 170 pounds, Doug Jr. is taller and a good 10 pounds heavier than the last generation of Bentleys during their playing career.

Doug Sr. agrees his son's skating is less than NHL calibre but adds that he "has a formidable slapshot and stick-handles like his uncle Max."

Two years ago he had a one game tryout with Knoxville, then a member of the Eastern Amateur League, and the coach found him "really impressive."

The coach? Doug Sr.

Member Of Olympic Squad Takes Speedskating Title

RICHMOND HILL, Ont. (CP) — Peter Williamson of Toronto, a member of Canada's 1968 Winter Olympics speedskating team, won three events Sunday to take the Ontario closed Olympic-style men's speedskating title.

Williamson, formerly of Winnipeg, edged Toronto Grenadier clubmate Peter Duck in the weekend outdoor competition 15 miles north of Toronto.

The champion turned in winning times of 44.4 seconds over 500 metres, 2:22.5 for 1,500 metres and 8:54.5 in the 5,000-metre race.

John Matussek of the Metropolitan Toronto Speed Skating Club placed third in the over-all men's competition by winning the 3,000-metre race in 5:9.7.

Another Grenadier club member, Mary Jane Duck, won the women's senior title, ahead of Kitchener Sertoma's Rosemary Wiese.

Greg Planert of Kitchener headed the junior men and Ann Archer of London, Ont., formerly of St. James, Man., won the junior women's competition.
